

THIRSTY SUNDAY CAUSES AGONY

All Saloons Closed Tight by Order of Chief of Police Lynch.

MOVE CAUSES SURPRISE

LUNCH COUNTERS AND DRUG STORES PROFIT BY CHANGE.

"Oh! no one knows how dry I am." This came sadly from many pairs of dry-eyes, parched-lips yesterday. The clink of glass, the "ding" of cash register, the laughter and hubbub—all these were missing. Men stood in groups, alone, in crowds and discussed the situation, casting at times longing eyes at the saloon doors, which were not swishing in their constant opening and closing to the thirsty soul enter and satisfied throat out. They were not swishing at all. They were locked. And behind them the bar room looked cold and deserted. They were empty. "Booze shops everywhere, and not a drop." Inquiry led to the knowledge that every saloon in town had been ordered the night before to close at 10 o'clock by Chief of Police W. J. Lynch. Any disobedience would cost the guilty ones high, also came from the same source. Police men were detailed to see that these orders were enforced. Hence the dry Sunday. A few jags were seen carried around town by parties who were still burdened with a Saturday night "load," but other unfortunate had to content themselves with lunch counter soup and drug store coffee.

There is an ordinance prohibiting Sunday rum selling, but for many moons this has not been enforced, so the saloon with which yesterday's drought struck this locality created considerable comment. No explanation was forthcoming, but it is a safe wager that there will be a run on "pints and quarts" next Saturday night. Once the rum is poured, a certain citizen yesterday, as he made the following entry in his memoirs: "Next Sat. sure. One quart. All off Sun."

PRINCE LOUIS OF BATTENBERG MAKES PUBLIC STATEMENT BEFORE SAILING

New York, Nov. 19.—Prince Louis of Battenberg's visit to New York will come to an end tomorrow. It was originally intended that the British squadron should start today on its voyage to Gibraltar, but the time was extended owing to delay in coaling the ships. It was announced today on board the flagship Drake that the squadron lying in the North river would get under way at 10:30 tomorrow morning, and would drop down stream to a point opposite the Cunard pier, when the Drake, having taken the admiral aboard, at the last moment would join her consort and lead the squadron down the bay and out to sea.

Officers of the squadron today denied the wholesale desertions that occurred from all the ships, and said that tomorrow they expected that every ship would carry away its full complement with the exception of such few stragglers as are always missing after a visit to a foreign port.

New York, Nov. 19.—Prince Louis of Battenberg died at the University and then drove to the New York theatre, where he was greeted with rousing cheers, and after he had entered the box he was obliged to stand and bow his response to the noisy welcome. Shortly after returning to his apartment at the Hotel Marlborough, he made what he said would be his last public statement before sailing for home.

"We shall leave here with the greatest feeling of regret, and there is no one of us who would not like to make our stay longer. I have met with every demonstration of kindness and respect, and your reception has been most cordial, particularly where large numbers have congregated to welcome us."

"I am very grateful for this, for it shows the kindly feeling of welcome extended to us comes from every class of the people. From President Roosevelt down to the lowest member of the population, I have received a cordial welcome in one way or another. I want to mention that the New York Yacht club, the famous America's cup was on the table, and I was permitted to sit at the table for two minutes. It's a little too heavy."

"Let me say that I consider the demonstration shown to us as cordially directed toward our country, and I know they are appreciated. For myself, I do not count. I am simply the representative of my country. I am sure the people of my country will look upon this visit as an honor to the king and themselves. We are proud to represent them, and our only regret is that on the only chance we have had to return some of this splendid hospitality, by giving a reception to the British, it was so cold in the supper room that all our guests were shivering."

"In departing I wish to express my appreciation for all that has been done in our honor. I have received an immense amount of correspondence from all sorts of people since I came to America, and I have endeavored to find time to answer it. I would not accumulate, but I could not keep up with letters larger than when I started. But I want to assure you that the moment we get to England I will try to reply to every letter not yet answered, and these letters will be mailed from Gibraltar. I wish this statement to be published, so that the many who have not heard from me will know that I have not forgotten them or tried to slight them."

Prince Louis will board the Drake at 9:30 tomorrow morning. He will visit only one more official visit, and that will be to Admiral Evans on the Maine.

BOYSEN IS ALL RIGHT CHARGES ARE UNTRUE

People of Thermopolis, Wyo., Have Changed Their Minds Since the Dynamite Outrage.

(Special to The Herald.) Thermopolis, Wyo., Nov. 19.—There has been a complete reversal of feeling throughout this section toward Asmus Boyesen and his enterprises during the past week or ten days. Instead of fighting Boyesen and his plans to prospect on Wind River Indian reservation, as per his concession from congress, the people now wish to assist him. The Commercial club last night passed strong resolutions condemning the actions of persons who have been fighting Boyesen, and calling upon the Wyoming delegation in congress to assist Boyesen in every legitimate manner possible. The resolutions state that Boyesen was granted certain rights in the reservation, and the business men demand that he be granted these rights. The blowing up of Boyesen's dynamite drill outfit is condemned in strong terms, and a heavy reward is offered for information that will lead to the arrest of the guilty parties.

Leading business men say Boyesen and his methods have been misrepresented. He is paying better wages than were ever paid here before, and he is only claiming that to which he is entitled under the law.

The Commercial club at its meeting last night repudiates the actions of persons who a week ago are alleged to have held a meeting of the club.

STEAMER TIED UP WITH VALUABLE CARGO ABOARD

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 19.—The steamer Carlisle is detained at Saigon with a cargo of arms and ammunition valued at $4,500,000 on board, because the Russian government refuses to pay her time charter, according to advice received by a local shipping firm from Saigon.

The Carlisle left Vladivostok in December last with a cargo of war munitions taken from the Vladivostok docks, and conveyed the steamer to Manila. When Captain Jensen learned that Japanese fishermen, on learning the nature of her cargo, tried to sink her. An American warship protected her and conveyed the steamer to Manila. ROBBER SHOT WHILE TRYING TO GET AWAY

Portland, Ore., Nov. 19.—A special to the Oregonian from The Dalles, Ore., states that Charles Jones, caught in the act of robbing the Diamond Milling company of flour tonight, resisted, and had all but overcome Ralph Gibson, the watchman, when the latter, succeeding in wrenching the revolver from his pocket, shot Jones to death. Jones was a mail laborer and lived at The Dalles.

VISIT TO SMELTER.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 19.—Delegates to the American mining congress which has been in session at El Paso, today visited the Copper Queen smelter at Douglas, Ariz. Luncheon was served in the sampling works at the smelter. A special train for Douglas left El Paso early this morning, returning before midnight. The delegates will leave for their homes tomorrow.

OUTLOOK FOR YOUNG MEN.

As to the question whether there is a greater opportunity for young men than ever before, we have the fact that farmers' sons do not find the land before them as a poor boy becomes thirty years old, says the Chicago Advance. Then the great states and territories of the west were an open prairie, with the opportunity for a homestead. Now the land is taken up by thousands of young men left their homes in the east and interior, and are now the comfortable possessors of beautiful and fertile farms. But these east-bound sons of the farmer are not the only ones who have found the "earth is sold." The young men who are now crowded off the farms of Illinois and Ohio cannot take a homestead in Kansas or Nebraska. There are forced toward the city to increase the competition there, with the result of aggravating the labor trouble.

Another obvious fact is that the big establishments and big concerns have been crowding out the small establishments. Surely, it cannot be maintained that young men find it as easy to start up for themselves in mercantile business now as they did late the days of the big department stores, or in manufacturing business as it was before the formation of the gigantic combinations. It is beyond dispute that the tendency has been to lessen the number of proprietors, and it is equally clear that this tendency greates the number of dependents.

Nothing is to be gained by obscuring these facts or by persuading the young men that the gates are wide open. A young man rises from a clerkship to the presidency of a railroad or a bank, or a poor boy becomes rich enough to get into the United States senate, and we say the way is open. So it is for the one man who becomes president of a railway company which has swallowed up a half dozen other companies and operates 15,000 miles of road; or for the man at the head of a bank which has consolidated the banks of the neighborhood; or for the two men who turn the earth upside down and severely let heaven alone to get into the upper house of congress. But for the majority of young men the gates are not so wide open. They are not so wide open as they were when the young men of your country understood this fact the better it will be for them. It will make them prepare better, educate themselves more thoroughly and cultivate the habits of industry and economy, which makes for success. Whatever else the time may be demanding, it certainly is demanding the very best preparation.

Backache, "The Blues"

Both Symptoms of Organic Derangement in Women—Thousands of Sufferers Find Relief.

How often do we hear women say: "It seems as though my back would break," or "Don't speak to me, I am all out of sorts." These sighs and groans prove that the system requires attention.

Backache and "the blues" are direct symptoms of an inward trouble which will sooner or later declare itself. It may be caused by diseased kidneys or some uterine derangement. Nature requires assistance and at once, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women. It has been the standby of intelligent American women for twenty years, and the ablest specialists agree that it is the most universally successful remedy for woman's ills known to medicine.

The following letters from Mrs. Holmes and Mrs. Cotrelly are among the many thousands which Mrs. Pinkham has received this year from those whom she has relieved.

Mrs. J. G. Holmes, of Larimore, North Dakota, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I have suffered everything with backache and womb trouble—I feel the trouble run on until my system was in such a condition that I was able to do about nothing. I was compelled to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If I had only known how much suffering I would have saved, I should have taken it long ago. My backache and womb trouble have been cured. My backache and womb trouble have been cured. My backache and womb trouble have been cured.

Mrs. Emma Cotrelly, 109 East 12th Street, New York City, writes:

THE MOTHER JOB IS A HARD ONE

Looked at from a romantic viewpoint, and through the eyes of poet, novelist, painter, dramatist, or speaker, the mother's life is a poem, a romance, a sermon, a madonna-like existence combining all the blessings and honors that Providence allots to woman, says the Philadelphia Telegraph.

The mother is "queen of her realm," (no allowance made for the power behind the throne), the holiest thing alive, the center of the universe, "the hand that rules the world," and a dozen other beautiful and sentimental symbols of perfect womanhood. No gallery is complete without her portrait, no artist is worthy the name who has not attempted to portray her, and the greatest writer would not dare to leave the world without contributing to literature some sort of description of the ideal mother.

She is pictured as soothing the childish sorrows of her little brood, next to her by means of the pacifier, the white-robed figure at her knee, familiar to the artist and literary world, who look chaste, uplifted admiration, while she beams upon it with the light of heaven in her eyes, and no mention is made of surreptitious prodings and prodings of the accursed "Tommy" on with your prayers."

The crooning song with which she sings baby to sleep—usually at 2 a. m. She would give half her kingdom to shake Tommy soundly for dawdling over his prayers, or to yield to mother's meetings' rules and let the baby cry. She would give half her kingdom to shake Tommy soundly for dawdling over his prayers, or to yield to mother's meetings' rules and let the baby cry.

In truth there is no more successful possesser of the crown's star of glory than the mother. It is that the pose is entirely compulsory. It has been made for her and she must adopt it, whether it fits her or not.

THE DEATH RECORD.

St. Louis, Nov. 19.—Dr. Emil Pretorius, editor in chief of the Westliche-Post and one of the German press in the west, died of blood poisoning today at his home, aged 78 years. He had been practically unconscious for two days.

Dr. Pretorius was born in Alzey, Rheinhessen, Germany, in 1827. He took degrees both in Glesch and the University of Heidelberg. He has been a member of the German revolutionary measures of 1849 and 1850. He was a member of the Missouri legislature as an emancipationist. He was an earnest advocate of the freedom of slaves as a war measure.

In 1861 he took editorial charge of the Westliche-Post and later became proprietor. Carl Schurz, who also fled from Germany, was associated with Pretorius on the newspaper for some years.

Dr. Augustus Choate Hamlin. Bangor, Me., Nov. 19.—Dr. Augustus Choate Hamlin, widely known as an author, artist and authority on tourmaline, of which he is said to have owned the best collection in existence, died last night, aged 72 years. He was a nephew of Hamlin Hamlin, vice president of the United States during the civil war.

But were some black ducks had been plucked and sunning themselves in the water, where numerous small, downy feathers floated and clung to grassy tussocks.

In a lagoon, in Jackson park, Chicago, where no shooting is allowed, the ducks are remarkably tame; though on Lake Michigan, where a mile away, they are hunted and are wild. There are other places where ducks find safe retreats from shooters, and in these they soon become very tame.

Grover Had a Little Joke. (Toledo Blade.) On one of ex-President Cleveland's western trips he arrived during a severe storm at a town in which he was to speak. As he entered his carriage and was driven from the station the rain changed to hail, and immense quantities of water leaves no room for the carriage to pass. A brass band, rather demoralized by the storm, stuck bravely to its post and played.

"That is the most realistic music I have ever heard," remarked Mr. Cleveland. "What are they playing?" asked his companion. "Hail to the Chief" with real hail."
